

CAREER EXPLORATION

Are you taking a gap year, going straight into the workforce, or even already thinking about your professional aspirations after college?

By exploring potential careers that align with your academic strengths and personal interests, you will be able to identify the best pathway that will get you to the career of a lifetime. There are so many resources online when it comes to exploring what is out there!

- CareerOneStop Get My Future provides information, tools, and links to resources to help anyone aged 16 to 24. Users can explore careers, learn about and locate training or education programs, and conduct a successful job search. The goal of this site is to help young adults overcome barriers and plan and achieve a path to career success.
 - U. S. Department of Labor Career One Stop Toolkit provides employment information and inspiration for job seekers, students, businesses, and career professionals.
- The ASVAB Career Exploration Program \(CEP\) is a FREE career planning resource available to high schools nationwide. This comprehensive program includes one of the most widely used multiple–aptitude test batteries in the world and an interest inventory complemented by a thorough occupational database all designed to give students an in–depth look at the world of work.
- The O*NET Interest Profiler can help you find out what your interests are and how they relate to the world of work. You can find out what you like to do. The O*NET Interest Profiler helps you decide what kinds of careers you might want to explore. (See also: My Next Move, a career planning tool powered by O*NET)
- Bigfutures by Collegeboard where “finding colleges and careers that are right for you doesn’t have to be stressful”.
- Roadtrip Nation, where they take “road trips to capture empowering stories that give you the confidence and tools to find a career that matters to you. Whether you're looking for new career paths or just looking for inspiration, we'll meet you at your level, match your learning style, and get you started on your career exploration journey”.